Prospect Kids laugh, love, learn, live, and lead.

Themes

The value of friendship: Make and cultivate at least one new friend.

The value of need: You should delay satisfaction from time-to-time.

The value of laughter: Life is not “all work and no play”, or at least it shouldn’t be.

The value of money: Give, save, and spend – in that order. Let yourself go without some “things”.

The value of work: If something is worth something to you, be willing to work hard for it.

The value of learning: One key component of a successful life is study.

The value of health: Try to get 30 minutes of exercise daily.

The value of selflessness: Find someone to help, and help them. Do it as anonymously as possible.

The value of teamwork: In life we will work together. We should learn how to now.

The Value of Work

Our theme for October is The Value of Work. If something is worth something to you, be willing to work hard for it. We will explore that theme during the month of October. On Sundays, during Expectation Lane, we will learn about

The House on the Rock, The 10 Bridesmaids, Joseph, etc.

We will have some neat “Expectation Experiences” to help the kids practice the lessons they are being taught.

In addition to those experiences, we will have the children make lists of things they want (like for Christmas and birthday) and what work they would be willing to do to earn them.

We will also play games that require a certain amount of work in order. We will play games like I Spy, Red Light-Green Light, and Simon Says.
